to suspend business.

The firm had been unable to realize on certain securities, and English associates who were expected to come forward with cash failed to do so.

After some preliminary business the elections bill was taken up and Mr. George addressed the Senate in opposition to the bill.
Mr. George alluded to the statement made yesterday by Mr. Hoar that there was not a line or sentence in the bill that would correct the alleged evils and wrongs growing out of the new Constitution of Mississippi, and said that nevertheless the time of the Senate had been largely occuash failed to do so.

Bateman & Co. practically owned the thantic and Danville railroad in Virginia, and it appears that the firm had exhausted teelf in trying to carry the enterprise. Inable to hold out longer, an assignment was made yesterday to Mr. John Garner, of discussippi, and said the second securities of the Senate had been largely occupied by Republican senators in discussion of that concededly irrevelant question.

NOT A SUDDEN COLLAPSE. Commodore Bateman and the remaining partner, Mr. Charles Coon, were in consul-lation up to a late hour last night, and when they parted the following circular his business.

"This has been to a very large extent accomplished and the business of the firm has been gradually reduced. The assignment of the firm and the senior member was precipitated by the failure of debtors upon whom they relied to meet their obligations. It is believed that all of the credigations. tors of the firm are substantially secured and will lose nothing."

What the extent of the firm's business during the past few months has been, or what number of outstanding contracts they have, it was impossible to learn last night. Those who knew refused to speak on the subject. Commodore Batemen left for Washington early in the evening.

Mr. Charles Coon, who appeared to be completely crushed by the failure, I saw at the Fifth-Avenue Hotel. He said he did not believe the liabilities would be greater than the assets, and that all creditors would ultimately receive what was due to them. He could not give any figures of processaw

Mr. Hawley made an explanation of some points made by Mr. George in connection with the laws and political practices of Connecticut and followed with another criticism of the new Constitution of Mississippi, which, he said, contained a patent, open, acknowledged, definit device for disfranchising the colored citizens of Mississippi. n all probability be made public to-day. The papers will be filed with the county

The trouble that led directly to the firm's suspension was an attenut to carry most of the Atlanue and Danville railroad stock and operate the road. There was a syndicate of English capitalists also interested in the road, and these Englishmen are referred to in the circulars as the customers that failed to aid the house in meeting its obligations. Mr. Bateman and his partners first became interested in the road about three years ago and practically built most of the track and purchased nearly all of the rolling-stock. When the recent troubles arose in London the Englishmen could not aid the firm as they had agreed to do, and it was impossible to realize upon the securities of the company. Senator George could not justify it and could not answer the papers of his own.

Mr. Bateman went to Washington last night and is expected to remain there until to-night. He refused just before starting to make public the purpose of his visit, but it is believed he went there to consult with the head of the company's office in that city. Considerable business was transacted through that office, and it was there the firm of Green & Bateman, the predecessors of A. E. Bateman & Co., was organized, ten vears ago.

It was asserted last night by a gentleman who is conversant with the affairs of both Mr. Coon and Mr. Bateman that they were worth over a million dollars a few years ago, but for some time they have been practically poor men. The Atlantic and Danville enterprise had been the direct cause of the trouble, he said, but there had been other equally injudicious investments. Mr. Bateman's illness also had considerable to do with it. He said that the assets would probably cover the liabilities, which would in all probability aggregate $1,000,000.

GREEN & DATEMAN. The firm was known up to February 12, 1890, as Green & Bateman, but on that date it was dissolved by a communication to the president of the New York Stock Exchange, as follows:

President of New York Stock Exchange:

President of New York Stock Exchange:

Dear Sir.—We beg to announce that Mr. Douglass Green is no longer a member of the firm of Green & Bateman, all connection having ceased from this date. Very truly yours.

New York, February 12th.

This notice resulted from the scandal that attended the marriage of Green to Mrs. Snell-McCrea, the daughter of the murdered millionaire of Chicago by a colored minister at Old Point Comfort on February 3d. Green, it was claimed, was insane. His wife, from whom he had not secured a divorce, was in Savannah at the time with their children, and he deserted them for the charms of the pretty Mrs.

McCrea.

The firm was composed previous to Green's second marriage and flight of Douglass Green, Arthur E. Bateman and ex-Assistant - Secretary - of-the - Treasury Charles E, Coon. The firm was an exceedingly prominent one on the street, having their offices then, as now, at No. 57 Broadway. Green was admitted to the Stock Exchange in June, 1889, while Commodore Rateman had been a member several years. Green paid especial attention to the execution of orders for the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds on the floor of the Exchange.

When Green withdrew from the firm Mr.

"Green's future, so far as business was concerned, was exceedingly bright. He not only made money in Wall street, but also in real estate speculation. The announcement that Green was no longer a member of the firm was made at the former's request in a letter to Commodore Bateman. When he had dispatched this note he engaged passage for Europe for himself and Mrs. McCrea and sailed on February 12th.

The Register's resume of the tobacco statistics for the year 1890 shows that the sales of loose leaf from January to January amounted to about 26,000,000 pounds.

The average price paid since October 1st was about $12 per hundred.

The shipments of manufactured tobacco for the year were 7,856,345 pounds, as against 7,582,854 pounds the previous year.

Many persons regard this as the handsomest house in the town. Dr. Edward B. Finey, of Wachapreague, has built a sightly house on the same street and has moved his family here to live.

The Baptists have moved their old church edifice farther back from the street and are building in front of it what will be one of the handsomest churches in this section.
